

as it is just as I said, but shew him nothing more. I do not wish him to be prying over my letters making insidious remarks. I will however send the letter just to prove my statement. I wrote a long letter to Lewis Gunn on Monday, hardly room in it to write my name. I gladly accepted of his paper etc & invited it to come to Weymouth. Pity Gunn is such an awful name for the youth who bears it is not so bad. If I were to get in slavery how ever, he would not give a mill to rescue me, for he expressly assured me he would not buy his own mother. I am greatly troubled for a boane

to run down to Grandmas & the Post office with. Therefore I wish you to send out your old speckled one to me. I will take out the velvet & it will do very well for. Also send "Prose Italiane" for Lucia. Also I should like to have you take Morseau's Eloise out of the Boston Library for me. I read Childs Harold a while ago & wanted to understand the allusion to Eloise. If you can get the English Edition I should like it, but if there is none but the French send that. Send out all these things by whoever calls on Saturday. I shall write either by Wm. Thwing man or Henry Cowley.
